STUDENT HANGED

IN CAIRO TODAY

Nationalist Whose Assassination of Premier Called For Scathing Denunciation From Roosevelt

(Special from United Press.)
Cairo, June 28—Abraham Wardani, a Nationalist student whose assassination early in the year of Premier Boutros Pasha called for a scathing denunciation at the hands of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt when he spoke before the students of the University of Egypt, was hanged here for his crime.

The execution occasioned intense excitement owing to the fact of a demonstration by the Nationalists. The government, however, made ample provision against this and there has not been the least disorder, although the Nationalists are holding meetings throughout the city.

Wardani ascended the scaffold proclaiming himself a martyr, and he had assumed since the crime, "I die for the cause of Egyptian liberty,"

The hanging was secret, even newspaper men being excluded from the prison yard, where the scaffold was erected. The crime was entirely surrounded by troops while hundreds of troops patrolled the streets and mingled with the crowds on the streets. No large gathering was permitted.

Wardani shot Premier Boutros Pasha as the latter was entering his automobile. He had just proclaimed that he killed the premier to bring the attention of the government to the alleged wrongs of the Egyptian University on March 23, 1915.

In his address to the students in the Egyptian University on March 23, 1915, Wardani had entirely surrounded by troops while hundreds of troops patrolled the streets and mingled with the crowds on the streets. No large gathering was permitted.

All good men, all men of every nation whose respect for the rights of man were inexpressibly shocked by the assassination of Boutros Pasha. It was a greater calamity for Egypt than a wrong to the Sultan himself. The type of man that turns assassin is the type possessing all the qualities of a criminal.

Wardani's crime was a good act, by word or deed, directly or indirectly encouraging such an act, in advance of the nation, over to some country which would.

It is of no consequence whether the assassin is Moslem or Christian. The rich man's hired act, performed by a poor man, whether committed with the pretense of obtaining money or liberty is a crime against the nation.

ALL LICENSED

Petition to Corral Cats and Tag Them Like Dogs Before New Haven Aldermen

One of the matters which served to open up the session of the New Haven Board of Aldermen last night was a petition favoring an ordinance aimed at stray cats. It was signed by Albert D. DeBussey, Charles W. Whitteley, J. D. Tower and John H. Rembert. It cited the fact that there are a great many "homeless, tramp cats" in our midst and that they are a nuisance. It is alleged that they kill song birds, squirrels, etc., and that they make unnecessary noises. The petition urged that all cats be licensed as dogs are and that should stray felines be caught on the back fence without a collar and license number it be dealt with summarily as are their friends the enemy. The petition caused much laughter, and was referred to the committee on ordinances.

DESTRUCTIVE BLAZE TODAY

(Special from United Press.)
Paterson, June 28.—Fire, which was not extinguished until a hour this morning, threatened to destroy an entire business block in the center of Paterson, injured four firemen and caused a property loss of $500,000. A back draught threw down the wall of the building and four firemen were buried under the ruins. They were soon dug out by their comrades. Their injuries are not serious.

SWEET GIRL GRADUATES

LOOK THEIR PRETTIEST

IN PLAIN DOLLAR GOWNS

(Special from United Press.)
New York, June 28.—Fashionable modistes who last night attended the graduating exercises at the Washington Irving High School hope that the innovation of the sweet girl graduates will not spruce up the school. The girls received their diplomas were attired in handsome gowns which cost them from 72 cents to $1.75 each, the average cost of the graduating dresses being $1. Not a soul in the audience which filled the auditorium would have known that the girls had set the new standard of economy in their dresses were as pretty and as fluffy and bewitching as the $40 and $50 dresses of other graduating classes. The idea of the $1 gown originated with Miss Muriel Willard, of the dress-making department, and the girls heartily concurred in the scheme. The dresses were made of lawn and muslin, purchased for "almost nothing" at bargain sales, and made by the girls themselves. Miss Neva Pratt achieved a triumph for only 72 cents. Miss Isabella Schwartz was more extravagant. She spent 95 cents on her gown. Miss Bertha Merzsummer spent $1.10 and Miss Hilda Holland actually threw money away. She expended $1.75 on a tunic gown.

Governor Hughes will arrive here tonight or early tomorrow. He will speak to the Harvard alumni tomorrow and on Thursday will deliver the Phi Beta Kappa oration at the university. REDDY-COMPANA

WEDDING TODAY

The bells of the church of St. Mary at ten o'clock this morning pealed a joyous accompaniment to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, as the bridal party attending the marriage of Florence Leona Campana and John Francis Reddy entered the church. The bride was preceded by her sister, Miss Harriet Campana as bridesmaid, the best man being John F. Freeman of New York. Albert Sullivan and John Flynn of this city officiated as ushers.

The solemnization of the marriage vows, sanctified by Rev. John Murphy, assisted by Rev. Father Mulcahey and Rev. James McDonald, was followed by a high nuptial mass with Father Murphy as celebrant. A program of specially selected music was rendered by Organist John W. Dill and Miss Margaretta Spencer sang Schubert's "Serenade," and Joseph Clabby sang in solos appropriate to the occasion.

The bride was attired in a gown of ivory white satin, en train, with trimmings of Irish point, and wore pearl ornaments and a handsome picture hat of white. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses.

The costume of the bridesmaid was an elaborate white robe with picture hat of pastel pink. Her bouquet was of bride's maid roses. In the immediate rear of the bride, Mrs. Charles N. Campana, mother of the bride, in a modish gown of black crepe de chine, Mrs. Hugh P. Reddy, the groom's mother, in black silk, and Miss Emma Reddy, sister of the groom, in peach satin with cream lace, and the three bridesmaids, Loretta and Elsie in dainty white lingerie frocks.

Three hundred invitations had been issued for the church ceremony, and with a limited number of exceptions, these were responded to by guests from New York, New Rochelle, Bridgeport and other Connecticut cities. Invitations to the reception were restricted to one-third the number at the church.

At the conclusion of the nuptial mass, the church bells were again rung as a concomitant to the bridal recessional, Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

Immediately after the church ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, 1098 Stratford avenue. The house was profusely decorated with palms, ferns, roses and carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Reddy stood in the bow window of the front parlor, receiving the congratulations of their friends, prior to the serving of the bridal repast.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Campana and until recently was employed as a designer in the millinery house of E. H. Dillon and company. Mr. Reddy holds the position of private secretary to John F. Freeman of New York. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh P. Reddy of New York City. Both are very popular in local circles.

Displayed among the wedding gifts were choice pieces of crystal, cut glass, silver, Haviland china, household furniture, cheques and gold coins from relatives. The array comprised many articles of beauty and value.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a necklace diamond set pendant, worn during the ceremony. The bridesmaid was the recipient of a gold necklace with pearl and diamond pendant from the bride, while the best man and ushers were remembered by the groom with gold cravat clasps.

Mr. and Mrs. Reddy departed on an afternoon train for a tour embracing Washington, Baltimore, Atlantic City and other southern points of interest. The going-away gown of the bride was of white serge, with which was worn a turban of Copenhagen blue.

Returning from the trip, Mr. and Mrs. Reddy will make New York city their permanent residence.

GREECE PROMISES TO MAKE

INDEMNITY TO ROMANIA

FOR LOOTING MAIL BOAT.

(Special from United Press.)
Constantinople, June 28.—A better tone prevails today in the relations between Greece and Turkey and Greece today promises to make full indemnity to Romania for looting the Roumanian mail boat Plerouse in days ago. This promise was demanded by both Roumania and Turkey and the demand was accompanied by a threat of a military movement against Greece in case she refused.

Mr. John H. Callahan and Miss Lillian Beatrice Williams were wedded Thursday night at St. Mary's parochial residence by Rev. Father McDonald.

Henry Callahan was best man and Miss Elizabeth Williams, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The announcement of the wedding was made at a reception held last Saturday evening at the home of the bride's mother, 172 Nichols street.

BOATS CRASH

IN HELL GATE

The Yale and the Middletown Jam Each Other in the Swift Current

Several hundred passengers aboard the Boston line steamship Yale and the Hartford line steamer Middletown were in the midst of a party when the two boats jammed into each other, the Yale being forced to turn aside while racing through Hell Gate against a strong ebb tide on their way to the Sound.

From the shore passengers aboard the Yale were seen at dinner in the dining room in the afterpart of the boat. Dinner was also being served aboard the Middletown. Scores of passengers crowded the decks of both boats.

The two boats got into the Hell Gate channel together. The Middletown was slightly in the lead, but she was overhauled by her rival. On one side they were being carried by the current, while on the other they were being held back by the strong ebb tide.

THE THEATRES

POLI'S
Historic is the Hudson Bay company. Its history is shot with adventure, filled with brave deeds and red with blood and courage. Strange things have happened under the domain of the north than ever were told in drama or novel. But some strong light is thrown upon the scene, upon that man's world, under the Arctic circle, by "The Call of the North," which is given at Poli's this week.

Some plays have a climax in the first act and a happy ending. Some plays have scattered climaxes and a happy ending. But the best plays have a climax at the end of every act, and the biggest climax of all at the very end of the last act.

The last of the kind of play "The Call of the North" is. Those who have read "The Conjuror's House," by Stewart White will know what the story is, and will understand why there are so many thrills in it.

Once again has John Ince had an opportunity to prove that his best work is done in the rough garb of the romantic adventurer. Really and truly, ladies, Mr. Ince, last night, as Ned Trent was a heroic figure such as women have loved since the day of Adam and will continue to admire until the end of time.

In the scene where Julia Bagner, with the exception of her father, would play the factor's daughter, Miss Lawrence, in the part, rose to a very high level, and quite lifted the house out of its serenity. With the final repetition of the phrase, "And I had such beg hope," the audience applauded with that applause which represents real emotion in them.

Me-en-gan, the Indian, who is, in the play, Justiciar to the factor, was personated by T. F. Griffin, excellent. Mr. Griffin made a figure that filled the eye and the mind.

It is difficult to refrain from praising all the character work of the several members of the company.

CONNECTICUT CHAUTAUQUA
WILL OPEN FOR TEN DAYS AT PLAINVILLE CAMP JULY 25.

The eleventh season of the Connecticut Chautauqua assembly will be held on the ground of the Plainville Campmeeting association, situated about one mile north of Forestville, in a beautiful grove high among the hills, beginning Monday, July 25 to August 3. It is an ideal spot for a vacation among trees, ferns and flowers. It is not a tent-meeting ground, but a community of comfortable and attractive cottages. It has recently been equipped with electric lights and running water.

An attractive program has been arranged by the program committee, composed of the Rev. B. F. Gilman, chairman, Hartford; the Rev. George M. Brown, Bridgeport; and Professor John W. Wetzel, New Haven. Truman J. Spencer, of Hartford, is president and M. Thornton McGee, of Hartford, secretary.

READ HIS FACE.

The Youthful Amateurs Were Sure He Was a Philanthropist.
They were youthful enthusiasts in physiognomy. On the seat opposite in the train was a man of commanding figure, massive brow and serious expression. "Splendid face!" one of them explained. "What do you suppose his life work has been?"

"A lawyer?" suggested the other. "No-o; there's too much benevolence in that face for a lawyer." "Maybe a banker?"

"Oh, no! A man with an expression like that couldn't have spent his life in merely turning over money." "He might be an editor."

"An editor! Cutting and slashing his enemies at every turn and even his friends occasionally for the sake of a smart paragraph? You can't read faces. That man's a philanthropist or engaged in some sort of public spirited work. Why, there isn't a line that doesn't indicate strength of purpose and nobility! Look at that curve there on the left!"

At the next station an old countryman took his seat beside the man with massive brow and soon entered into a conversation with him, in the course of which he asked the latter "what was his line."

The two opposite held their breath in the intensity of their interest. "Oh, I've got a little tavern and butcher shop back in the country a bit," was the
